CURRENT RESEARCH PROJECTS

The role of parental capacity for child health and development among low-income single mothers within disasters

Role: Principle Investigator 2022- ; Co-I: W. Alex Mason

Our research advances the field of child health and development by examining the empirical structures and impacts of four dimensions of parenting (sense of parenting efficacy; parenting stress and burden; skills and behaviors; and connectedness) among low-income single mothers (target $N = 250$) in the aftermath of climate disasters (wildfires; floods; landslides; earthquakes; extreme weather events). In so doing, this project responds to the need for more information about what constitutes key dimensions of parenting capacity for low-income, single mothers in the growing crisis of climate disasters, and how these dimensions of capacity operate, within a risk and protection framework, to protect the mental health and well-being of children.

- Submitted R15 PAR-22-060 (Research Enhancement Award Program (REAP) for Health Professional Schools and Graduate Schools proposal for NICHD (Eunice Kennedy Shriver National Institute of Child Health and Human Development; total funds requested $429,375, submitted February 2023, not funded)
- Submitted a prior version for R01 Research Project Grant proposal for NICHD (Eunice Kennedy Shriver National Institute of Child Health and Human Development; total funds requested $1,174,421, submitted June 2023, not funded)

Promoting family well-being amidst adversity: Stress and coping practices of refugee parents
Role: Principle Investigator (Janet Shapiro, co-PI; community based research partnership with Nationalities Service Center in Philadelphia, PA); 2014-

- Qualitative project interviewing service workers and parents to explore how parents navigate the stress of pre-flight, flight, and resettlement with specific attention to the strategies parents utilize to protect their children and promote both individual and collective resilience
- Bryn Mawr College Faculty Research Fund awarded in 2017 ($4700) to continue preparations for the second phase of the project, including hiring RAs and an editor to assist with grant applications
- Letter of Inquiry submitted to William T. Grant Foundation: January, 2017 (requested amount: $150,000, not funded); Grant proposal submitted to the Silberman Foundation: April, 2014 (requested amount: $40,000, not funded); follow up applications being drafted

The life goes on: Refugee family experiences of psychosocial wellbeing during the perinatal
Role: Collaborator (Bree Akesson, PI) 2023-; funded by Canada's Social Sciences and Humanities Research Council (SSHRC)

- The project will use a longitudinal interpretive phenomenological analysis (LIPA) approach to take a comprehensive view of the perinatal period by asking: What are refugee families' experiences of the perinatal period in the context of war and displacement? The research will focus on one of the most persecuted ethnic minorities in the world: Rohingya refugees, using a socioecological approach to guide participant selection and data collection methods.
- In my role as collaborator, I will help develop and supervise the collaborative family interview (CFI) methodology alongside community partners in Phase 1, specifically working on the recruitment strategy and the development of the interview guide for T1, T2, and T3. During Phase 2, I will work with the PI and co-PI to oversee data collection in Bangladesh and contribute to the data analysis process. In Phase 3, I will collaborate with the PI and co-PI on the implementation of knowledge mobilization activities, specifically taking the lead on at least one publication related to parenting within political violence.

Families under fire: A global study of family practices, rights, and well-being in war-affected settings

Role: Collaborator (Bree Akesson, PI); 2019-

- Mixed methods project, including GIS, exploring the psychosocial implications of the refugee experience among Syrian refugees

- Aim is to inform practice and policy interventions about family needs within the Syrian refugee crisis
- Grant proposal submitted to Canadian Social Sciences and Humanities Research Council (Bree Akesson, PI; Cindy Sousa, Collaborator)

RESEARCH AFFILIATIONS

Research Affiliate, Global Adversity and Wellbeing Research Group, Center for Leading Research in Education, Wilfred Laurier University, Ontario, Canada

The Global Adversity and Wellbeing (GAWB) Research Group examines intersections of extreme adversity and wellbeing through the lens of place theory, with a specific focus on the family and home. Their core research areas are parenting in the context of war, domicile as a human rights violation, and global social systems strengthening. Led by Bree Akesson.

Research Affiliate, Health, Conflict, and Psychology, Department of Human Sciences & Education, The University of Milano-Bicocca, Milan, Italy

Health, Conflict, and Psychology aims to develop pathways of research, teaching and clinical activity, and psychosocial intervention within a perspective of critical analysis of human rights, focusing on social injustice and structural inequality and their impact on people's mental health and well-being. Led by Guido Veronese.

PREVIOUS RESEARCH AFFILIATIONS & PROJECTS

Relationship of political violence to mental health among women in Palestine

Role: Principal Investigator, Collaborative Researcher; 2007-2020

- Principal Investigator in a research partnership for a study examining communities' exposure to political violence and potentially related mental health conditions (including potential moderators/mediators).
- Aid in writing of funding proposals and reports.
- Developed needs assessment and program evaluation tools for mental health program in West Bank, Palestine.

Longitudinal Study of Exposure to Family Violence (PI: Todd Herrenkohl)

Role: Research team member/NIMH Prevention Trainee; 2006-2017

GSSWSR Curriculum Committee

2020 – 2023 [three-year term]

Program Director, GSSWSR Doctoral Program

The PhD Program Director is responsible for general administration of the program, including providing general oversight and timely communication with students, faculty, and staff to ensure the smooth operation of the program in such matters as admissions; orientation; student performance; preparation and administration of preliminary examinations; notifications regarding candidacy applications; filing of financial aid applications; curriculum and program development (including preparation of list of classes); monitoring and leading collaborative faculty revision of PhD procedures and policies; budget oversight and engagement to ensure adequate financial resources for the program.

In my time as Director, I developed new orientation and ongoing professional development opportunities for doctoral students; aided doctoral students as a whole in increasing their submissions for major social work and public health conferences and publications; developed and coordinated a global PhD café, connecting our students with students at a university in Milano, Italy; and established and led a work group to examine and strengthen our mission, vision, and procedures.

Chair, GSSWSR Curriculum Committee

2012-2020

Co-Faculty Lead, Dual MSS-MPH Program (with Jefferson University)
